---

Simon Gintzler

(Venice, 1547)

Edited: Göran Crona 2011

Dear lovers of renaissance lute intabulations

Here is the only lutebook by Simon Gintzler, the Austrian lutenist in the service of Cardinal Christophorus Madrucus. Some of this music can be found in three modern editions. Two of them are of the ricercares and one is of selected intabulations. Two of the ricercares were also published in 1891 by Oscar Chilesotti, in his "Lautenspieler des XVI Jahrhunderts", (IMO the best two # 2 & 4). A number of his pieces were "pirated" by Phalese in several publications beginning with Hortus Musarum (Amsterdam 1552).

You might find that Gintzler's intabulations are not "overly" difficult to play, and I would therefore like to share them with the lute-playing community.

Notes:

Printer setup should be set to "standing" and paper size to A4. The tablature font is 12 points. Note that the flags are not duplicated for each measure, and only reappear when changing value, for easy prima-vista playing.

If you find some of the pieces too tightly formated on one page, or too loose, just change symbol spacing and font size with (F6).

Very little of this material has yet been recorded. (Herringman) Many thanks to Mathias Rössel for the translation from latin!

Hope you enjoy this music. If you have corrections, comments or questions, pls. drop me a mail.

Simon Gintzler

To my most illustrious and venerable lord, the lord Christophorus Madrucius, Cardinal and Prince of Trient and administrator of Brixen, (South Tyrol, Austria) my most dear lord.

It was an old farmers' custom, most illustrious Prince, to spend the first fruits to those Deities who would take care for them, as was supposed, in order to bear witness to the farmers' piety toward the Deities by such a deed. In imitation of that fashion, I have wished to dedicate these little fruits of my labours to you. For this, I have no other reason than to show obedience and loyalty of an attendant, who has long been dependent on you. Furthermore, I have reckoned it timely to offer to you something which, I thought, might please and attract you. Such is the music whose art and students you have always favoured and nourished, knowing that among other famous ornaments which pertain to the enlightenment of a Prince, the study of music must not be despised. As regards the days when it was highly esteemed in ancient Greece, particularly music of stringed instruments with changing strikes of melody, it is known that commandments regarding music were not less hallowed than those regarding nutrition or personal hygiene. Plato held music necessary for general welfare. Lycurgus, himself a very wise legislator, judged that military exercises cannot be appropriately conducted without musical melodies. For these reasons I hope that you will accept my merry play. Although it may be very light, under your protection it will nevertheless seem more sober and honourable and will achieve great influence from your fabulous reputation and will therefore perhaps be proved and endorsed, being adorned and protected by your name against the stings of critics. Furthermore it will be a proof of your education that these little things will be measured not by its material shape but by its intellectual contents. For even to king Artaxerxes a bottle of dirty water, that a farmer had brought him in deep devotion, was most pleasurable and welcome. - Farewell!

Aspice domine

[Jachet]

The musical score is organized into ten staves, each representing a different voice or part of the ensemble. The voices are typically labeled with letters (a, b, c) above the staff, though some staves do not have labels. The music is divided into measures by vertical bar lines. Measure numbers are placed at the beginning of each staff. The notation uses a variety of note heads (a, b, c, d, e) and rests, with some notes having vertical stems and others horizontal stems. The music is set against a background of vertical bar lines.

Jay veu que jestois franc

[Sandrin]

The musical score consists of two staves of five-line music. The notation uses a mix of French and English note heads (e.g., 'a', 'b', 'c', 'd', 'f', 'g', 'h') and rests. Measure numbers 1 through 29 are indicated on the left side of each staff. The music consists of eight measures per staff, with some measures containing only rests.

Ce qui est plus en ce monde

[Sandrin]

The musical score is composed of ten staves, each representing a different voice or instrument. The staves are numbered 1 through 10 on the left margin. The notation is a form of tablature or shorthand, using vertical stems and horizontal dashes to indicate pitch and rhythm. The music is in common time. The score begins with a melodic line in staff 1, followed by staff 2, and so on. The voices are independent, creating a polyphonic texture.
