

14. Though that men do call

Henry Tudor

Though that men do call it do- tage,
 And who- so- ev- er may love get
 Or else from her which is her heir,
 With eye and mind doth both a- gree,
 The eye doth look and re- pre- sent;
 Thus am I fix- ed with- out grudge,
 Love main- tain- eth all no- ble cour- age;
 Such - lo- vers, though they take pain,
 For of- ten times where they do but sue
 For - who- so lo- veth should love but one;

Who lo- veth not wan- teth cou- rage, rage.
 From Ve- nus sure he must it let, let.
 And she to him must seem most fair, fair.
 There is no boot; there must it be, be.
 But mind af- firm'th with full con- sent, sent.
 Mine eye with heart doth me so judge, judge.
 Who love dis- dain- eth is all of the vil- lage, lage.
 It were - pi- ty they - should ob- tain, tain;
 They hin- der lo- vers that - would be true, true.
 Change who- so will, I will be none, none.
