

1. Coy Daphne fled

John Danyel

Coy Daph- ne fled from Phoe- bus hot pur- suit, Chaste Daph- ne fled from Phoe- bus hot pur- suit, care- less of pas- sion, sense- less of re- morse. Whilst he com-know- ing men's pas- sions id- le and off course. And though he plain'd his grief, she rest- ed mute. He begg'd her stay; she still kept on her plain'd, twas fit she should be mute, and hon- or would she should keep on her course. But what re- ward she had for this, you see: she rest trans-course. For which fair deed her glo- ry still we see. She rests still form'd, a win- ter- beat- en tree, she rests trans- form'd, she green, and so wish I to be, she rests still green she
